

"The Enigmatic Tapestry: A Day Unraveling Shadows in Gothra"

In 2016, KVASU-CWS launched and expanded the university's tribal welfare project, "Gothra Mission," and began actively participating in tribal welfare activities. The Centre is dedicated to empowering the presently underprivileged and exploited tribal communities, whose eco-friendly lifestyles have protected the Western Ghats' forests and biodiversity. The Centre also assists farming communities that are experiencing conflict between humans and wildlife, and it empowers youth from other socioeconomically disadvantaged communities.

I-Farm unit

I observe i-farm units as I enter Gothra, where Ravi Chettan is in charge of tending to and feeding fish, poultry, and other animals. The "Gothra Mission" of the Veterinary University established "I-Farm" units to encourage sustainable coexistence in places like Wayanad that support wildlife. With "I-Farm," users can cultivate a range of products, such as fish, eggs, and vegetables, guaranteeing a diverse and self-sufficient supply without worrying about theft or upsetting nature since it provides secure and efficient areas for farming.

"Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam" (The World is One Family!)

I saw "Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam" when I'm resting in KAPPA 'n' CUPPA- GOTHRA BHOJAN, This indicates that LUCA was the common ancestor of all living things that exist on Earth today. There is only one family in the world! The collective human intelligence understands that all forms of life are interconnected, whether through ancient philosophical enlightenment or more recent scientific discoveries.

I was looking at the ferral pigeons when I suddenly saw Santha Chechi giving them food with lots of love and attention. The oldest gothra worker is Santha Chechi. She has been a part of this foundation from the beginning. She is in charge of feeding the animals.

GOTHRA SABHA

The Gothra Sabha, a meeting space that speaks to the knowledge of decades, is becoming more and more noticeable as we move forward. It's as if the natural world is in attendance, observing the proceedings with benevolent eyes.

In the mystical realm of academia, where the walls witnessed to the evolution of myriad the minds and the corridors echoed with the whisper of knowledge, an odd thing took place: the rise of the mysterious "Gothra Classes."

CHINESE GOOSE

Unexpectedly, the calm and peaceful atmosphere was disturbed as I stood there by a cacophony of honking. Curiosity piqued my senses as I turned, and a scene of ethereal beauty materialised before me.

Golden peasant

Gothra Hut

By. Sankar Devan MS and Dr. Bimal P. Bashir*

Kerala Veterinary and Animal Sciences University, Pookode, Wayanad, Kerala